

Well-Known Hackman Dies

Courier-Journal (1869-1922); Nov 26, 1910;

ProQuest Historical Newspapers: Louisville Courier Journal (1830-1922)

pg. 8

Well-Known Hackman Dies.

Allen Watson, colored, a well-known hackman of Louisville, died of enlargement of the liver at 9:15 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, 512 South Tenth street, after an illness of three months. The funeral will be at the Chestnut-street Colored Methodist church, 813 West Chestnut street, at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and burial will be in the Eastern cemetery.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.